Mom liked to do watercolor painting in her 60s and early 70s. These are a few of her paintings.

“ It was my priviledge to be a 1st cousin of Marion. Although there was quite an age difference with us, she always connected to me when we talked. I wish we lived closer in our later years. The times our families spent together in Pompton Lakes and Poughkeepsie and Kingston will always be cherished. Marion was extremely resourceful and independently minded with a great sense of humor as I remember her. My parents loved her so much and so looked forward to seeing her and the kids years ago. You're missed, Marion....by all of us.

“ One time my mother made lunch for a man that she hired to do work for her outside her house. I always liked that. About a year and a half ago my sister Nancy told our mother that she had a doctors appointment and my mother said "oh! I better get ready." I thought that was sweet because even in her 90s she thought it was important not to be late for a doctors appointment. Mom was artistic and liked to write simple poetry. In the 2000s I experienced the presidential debates and elections with my mother. We liked talking about the candidates and who we thought should win. Mom really liked Rush Limbaugh and used to listen to his radio program. Mom used to love to watch American Idol years ago, and was a big fan of Clay Aiken. She also liked Roy Orbison a lot too. My mother truly cared about animals and respected them. One time in the early 1970s my mother bought a capuchin monkey. She also owned 2 pet shops in the 1950s with her mother. Mom really liked the north better than the south but she eventually moved to Florida permanently. Mom was lucky to have good aunts, uncles, cousins and very long term friends that she liked. My mother lived her life and I'll always remember the energy she had. I feel inspired by her and proud of her.
